

Cut out book on previous page as one piece. Fold in half. Cut on dotted lines to form flaps. Discuss the information provided with your student. Let your student cut and paste the history information under the appropriate flap.

Cut out cover and paste flap book inside.

	1796
	1865
	1885
	1892
	1968
	1971

Washington's birthday a holiday in Washington, D.C during his last year as President

Lincoln's birthday celebrated, but not a holiday, the year after he was assassinated.

President Arthur passed a law to make Washington's birthday a national holiday.

Lincoln's birthday made a legal holiday in the state of Illinois. Many states followed.

Congress passes a law that Washington's birthday nationally recognized on the third Monday of February.

President Nixon passed a law to combine both birthdays on the third Monday of February as a national holiday.

History of President's Day

